In 1924, the first Warren Township school opened its doors to the community and offered new and innovative methods of learning, providing a variety of opportunities to the young and old. As they celebrate their seventieth anniversary, eveyone involved with Warren Township schools has been looking back on the many changes that have taken place throughout the years, creating a better environment for students and faculty. The developments of the Walker Career Center, the Performing Arts Center, and the Science Center have vastly improved the quality of the high school's facilities. The high school has moved from 10th and Post to 16th and Franklin to it's current address, progressing into the state of the art building it will be when this latest construction is finally finished. Warren has survived the Depression, World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam Crisis, desegration, the hippie and disco era, and, most recently, the Gulf War. Warren has also endured the coldest winter in the history of Indianapolis (this year!) with the record breaking temperature of -26 degrees. The continuous support of the community and the pride and spirit of the student body and faculty has helped Warren to remain leaders in the field of education as they continue their seventy year tradition of excellence.

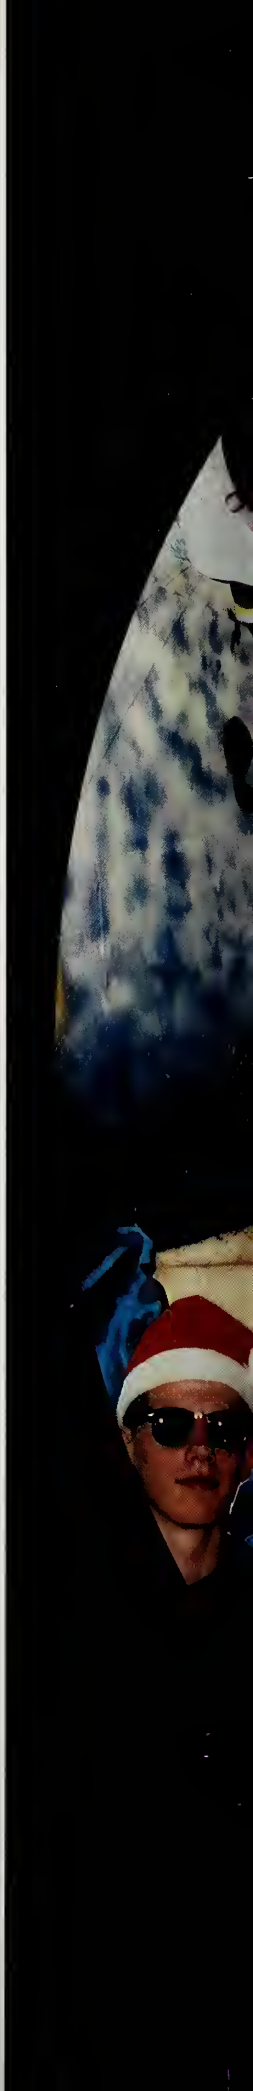
Over 800 copies of the 57th volume of the yearbook were printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks at a cost to the students of $30 (if they ordered it early) or $35 (if they ordered it late in the year). Mrs. Cathy Wolff served as the Herff Jones representative and Mrs. Debbie Dowell was the in-plant consultant. Ms. Gayle J. Harmon was the Publications Director and Yearbook Advisor. Printed on 100 pound Bordeaux paper, each section follows a theme concept and design, which runs throughout the book, with variations to individualize each section. Theme concept and design (including general formats for the different sections, with input from the individual section editors) was created by the Co-Editors-in-Chief, Kristen Clark and Christina Van Y. The cover, endsheets, Opening and Student Life sections, as well as the beginning of Performing Arts, were printed using four color process. Portrait and group photos were taken by Prestige Portrait Studio, while candids were taken by either Prestige or staff photographers. The four color Mini-Mag was ordered from Herff Jones and added to the back endsheet of the yearbook.

Reality

As students rushed in the doors on the first day of school, new and unfamiliar sounds were heard throughout the halls. It wasn't the sound of screaming kids or the calls of questioning teachers; it was the sounds of drills, hammers, and saws echoeing among the newly constructed walls that would soon be part of the New Warren. Students adjusted to the changes quickly and grew accustomed to the new tunnel, media center, and the beautiful design of the new main entrance—not to mention our new Principal Mr. Robert Albano. Together the students found themselves lost among old and new territory and soon discovered that the challenges of an ordinary school day in the midst of all this confusion were enough in themselves to be a REALITY CHECK.



Spring Break '94!

During Spring Break, thousands of teens flocked to Florida, Alabama, Tennessee,Cancun, and that all-time favorite place, the backyard. "I had a lot of fun at Gulf Shores, Alabama with my boyfriend and friends. It was a time to relax and enjoy myself," said senior Stephanie Ehrgott, who went to Gulf Shores with David Hewitt, Lisa Riggles, Gina Riggles, and Greg Hewitt.

Remembering to pack shorts, sandals, suntan lotion, and of course, the swimsuits was only half of the ritual of getting ready for the big week vacation. The Spanish Club prepared for their exciting trip to Cancun, Mexico for a year and the anticipated wait paid off once they landed in the tropical country. "Cancun blows Florida out of the water! I had the best time of my entire life! I will always remember the people I met there!" said senior Sneha Patel, who was one of the twenty-four people who went to Cancun with the Spanish Club.

Not everyone went to a warm place during Spring Break. Sophomore Scott Prichard said, "I rode the train to Chicago and had fun. I will always remember my dinner at Michael Jordan's restaurant."

Some students found themselves among the trees high on the Smoky Mountains. "Our trip to Tennessee was one trip I will always remember. We all had a great time," said senior Aimie Himes. By Kristen Clark

What about your Friends?

Friends have always been an important part of a teen's life. As students went from the playground to classrooms they always seemed to have some one close to lend a helping hand to . Although most friends have met through school, sports, and different clubs, a friend can be more than just someone you meet at school. Junior Amanda Hacker and senior Vanessa Hacker are sisters and good friends. Amanda said, " When I was born, my mother told Vanessa that I was her baby, so she never felt threatened by me." A good friendship required understanding, caring, and true loyalty. Junior Caroline Fulton said, "Loyalty is the best quality because I wouldn't want a friend to go behind my back and betray me." "I look for friends who are there when I need them, are problem solvers, and won't be backstabbers," said senior Mandy Lopez.

Throughout the year, friends found many ways to enjoy each others company. "For fun, my friends and I just hang out, rent movies, or go somewhere. It doesn't really matter what we do as long as we are having fun together," said sophomore Chante Graham.

All in all, a friend was a special person in everyone's life that understands and will always be there. Senior Jon Ferguson said, "My friends will always mean a lot to me. We might have fought a lot, but they were always there for me when I needed them. I will always have fond memories of my friends throughout the years at Warren." By Andrea Peck Below, Left: Heather Scott, with Darren Shannon and Heather Stapleton--"Before you met me you were nothing; you were a Brownie, you were a Girl Scout Cookie."

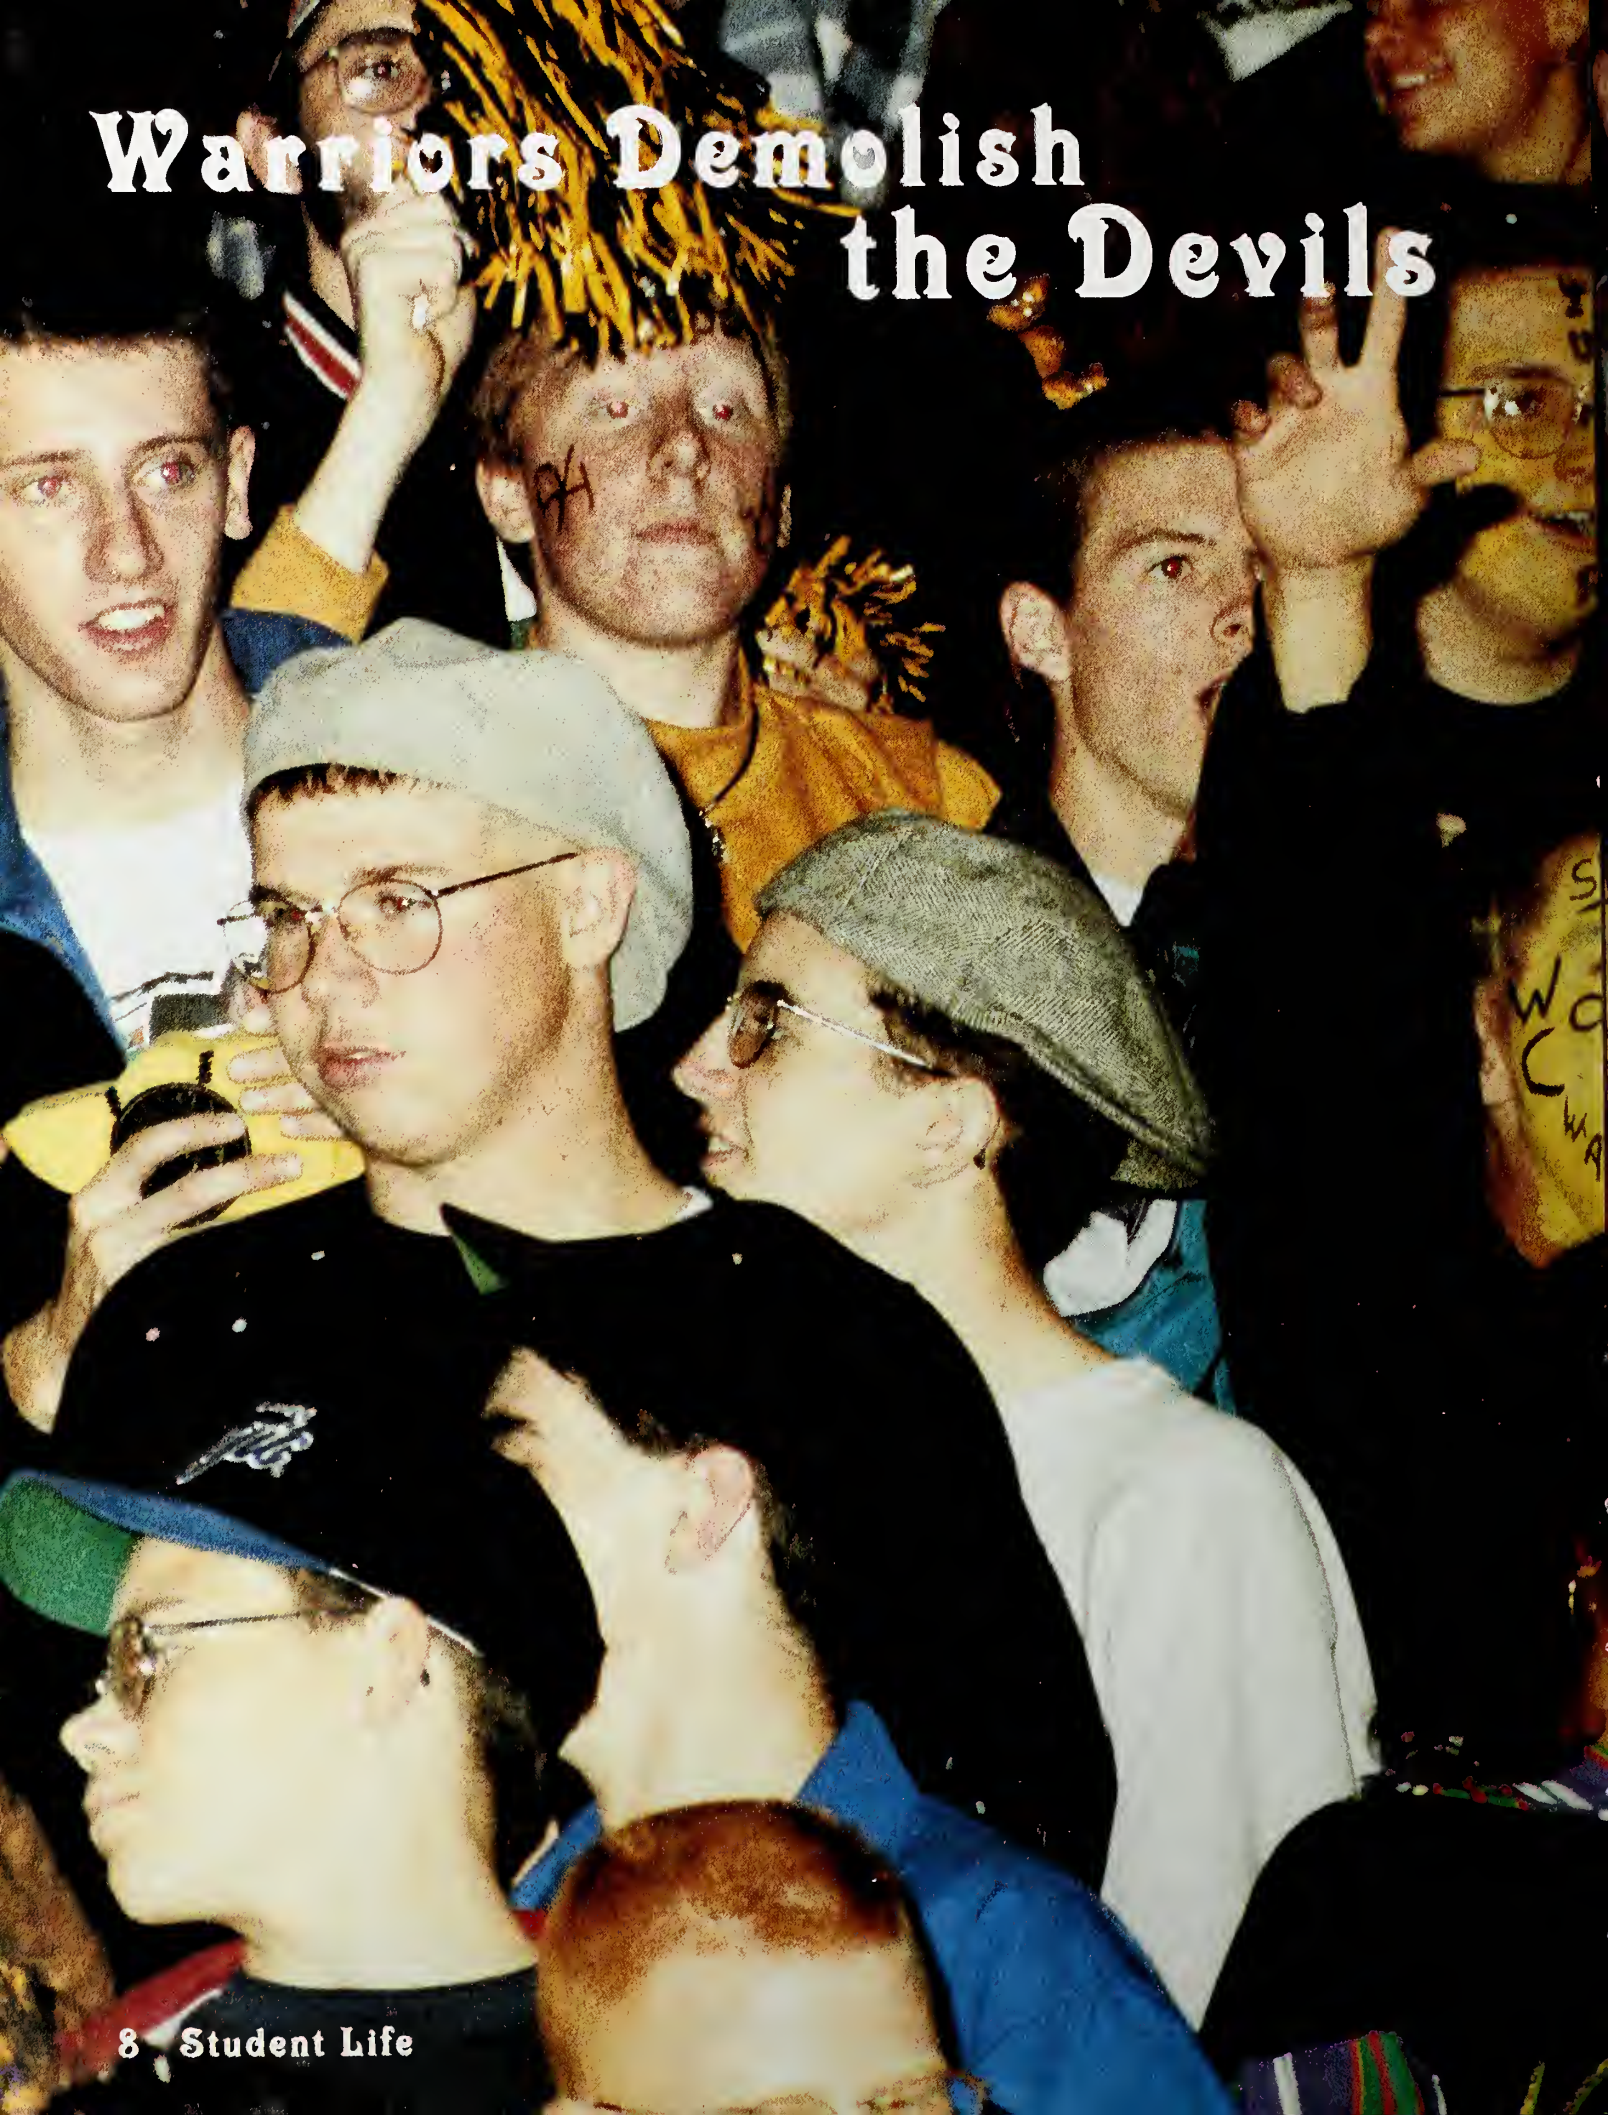
Warriors Demolish the Devils



With a Heavenly Victory

Unquenchable Spirit

Students walked around in Mickey Mouse attire, looked like construction workers, sported crazy hats, bummed around in clothes purchased from Goodwill, and showed off their spirit in Black and Gold for the festivities of Homecoming Week. The Week promoted school spirit to all the students. The dress-up days were a hit among the them. "I loved Bum Day because I did not have to worry about looking good, I just came to school looking like I do when I wake up, and I was so comfortable. It was a relaxing day.," said senior Gina Gill.

Besides the dress-up days, Student Council planned many other activities for the students. The most popular one was the annual Homelycoming Queen Contest. Senior boys dressed in their drag to compete to see who was the prettiest girl of them all. Darren Shannon won with his outrageous HoneyBee custume. He received a huge bra with his name inscribed on one of the cups during the pep rally. The pep rally was a loud success and pitted the seniors and juniors and sophomores against each other in the class pride yelling contest. For the first time recorded, the juniors outyelled the seniors in the class competition!

The pep rally was the climatic point towards the big game against Pike. The Warriors came out victorious with a lopsided score of 42-14. The crowd participation was overwhelming with the majority of students wearing a sea of black and gold. With each touchdown, the crowd cheered louder and by the end of the game the sound was a deafening noise. "The game was great and the crowd was wild. It great to see so many students participate," said junior Josh Mason.The events came to a close with the dance on Saturday night where Queen Laura Grant and King Clinton Sharp stepped on the floor to dance to their coronation. Community Celebration

People lined the streets and hallways to take part in a Warren tradition that has been popular for years, the fall Homefest. Due to the construction, Homefest was in the south gym for the first time and not the usual Gaseline Alley. Various booths filled the gym with excited people ready to demonstrate their items on display to curious onlookers. "Homefest is always fun because there are always a lot of neat things to look at and my friends are always roaming around that I can hook up with later," said senior Janet Andres.

Many different booths offered services to the customers such as food service, painting faces, and informational advice. Painting the Warren logo or any design attracted many faces to ge decorated to show off their spirit and support for the Warriors. "I felt like a little kid getting my face painted. I had fun, but it was getting itchy a bit too much," said junior Stephanie Sweet. The Drama students were the active painters busying themselves by making sure each painting was picture perfect. Besides painting faces, the Just Say No Club had a booth stating the dangerous affects of drugs. The members advocated to students and parents the great reasons why they should stay away from drugs. Yearbooks were also on sale and many former students came back to receive their much awaited books. Homefest was a great success and the whole communtiy got involved to promote school spirit. By Kristen Clark

Stylin'

The trend of the year was that there was no trend. "This is the time in our lives when we are discovering who we are and what we want to be. In doing this we grow apart from large groups and become stronger individuals," said senior Jon Ferguson.

The styles that students chose to portray were often influenced by many different things. Sophomore Jay Woodburn said, "I think an individual's style depends on how that person relates to life." Junior Jacob Wallace said, "I dress the way I do according to the mood I'm in that day. If I'm in a good mood I'll dress up; if I'm in a bad mood I'll dress grunge." "Art has influenced my personal style because it expresses my own thoughts and feelings and I can relate to it," commented junior Meri Moore.

Along with art and one's mood, music also can have an effect on how one dresses. "My friends and I listen to country music and we like to go country line dancing. I like to dress country and I really like to wear cowboy boots," said junior Jiffy Skinner.

Some students do not have one particular style. Sophomore Josh Stayton said, "I don't like to dress one certain way all the time; I just dress in whatever is most comfortable. I like being able to dress however I feel like dressing without having to worry about what my peers will say. Everyone has their own personal style and I respect them for their originality." By Jennifer Stayton

Lip Service

Coming in a close second were those buttheads, seniors Andy Cornett and Derek Hoffman imitating the MTV cartoon hit, Beavis and Butthead. They sang a trio with Cher, impersonated by senior Stephanie Sage, singing her famous song "I got you, Babe." "It was cool! Yeah, fun! Huh, Huh, Huh," said Andy Cornett, who portrayed Beavis in the contest.

Rounding out the awrad finishers, the sultry group Nubian consisting of seniors Monica and Monique Crain and Vicki Varnado knocked the socks off the audience and judges with their performance of the popular R&B hit, "Free Your Mind". "We wanted to do something that symbolized how we felt and would enjoy doing," said Monica Crain. By Kristen Clark and Christina Van Y

Raid the Hornets

On usual Mondays students always appeared to be in a sleeping mode, However, the Monday of Winter Homecoming students were given the opportunity to come to school as if they were still alseep because it was Pajama day. " I got up and did not even take a shower or change my clothes. I had fun and was comfortable," said senior Tim Chaffins.Pajama day kicked off the busy week of Winter Homecoming which continued with Hippie Day, Dress Up Day and the all time favorite, Black and Gold Day.

Besides the dress up days, Winter Homecoming was full of fun-filled activites. The door decorating contest, the lip sync contest, the basketball game, and finally with a dance that rounded out the week. " It was my first Winter Homecoming and the upperclassmen made it fun," said sophomore Media Trent. By Kristen Clark and Christina Van Y

Movin' On

The seniors raised their voices above everybody else to be heard loud and clear in the many activities which took place. Defeating the juniors and sophomores in the hall decorating contest sent a definite message to the underclassmen that the seniors were a class to be reckoned with. " The seniors worked hard on the wall and demonstrated their senior pride," said Natalie Cowan. Seniors exhibited a positive attitude at every other activity throughout the year as well. "It was fun supporting our teams and cheering on our fellow seniors to victory," said Ed Ward who came to games full of enthusiasm.

Seniors were the leaders in club participation. They were the presidents, vice presidents, and editors who led their groups and organizations in a successful manner. "I think our class was one of the most spirited class in the ways of participation in clubs and activities," said Patrice Petty. With the anticipation of graduation in the many minds of seniors, the realization hit that they would soon be movin on. By Kristen Clark and Christina Van Y.

Movin' Up

"When you don't think about it, life at Warren went by pretty fast," said junior Tara Smith. "I think it went fast because we only have to spend three years here instead of four, " added Amy Hart. The junior class endured two long and torturous years of being taunted by the seniors and constantly had to defend themselves. However, suppressing the insults and keeping their cool, the juniors matured and challenged the seniors as the leaders of the school. During the Homecoming pep rally, the juniors stole the spotlight from the seniors and undoubtly yelled and cheered louder than any other class, especially the seniors. The spirit of the junior class surrounded the entire student body. Tony Haines said, "We wanted to show that the juniors were in control of the pep rally."

The overwhelming spirit of the juniors forged a new role for them as the movers and shakers of the school. They unprecedently accepted the obstacles of being in the middle and not having a definite role in the school, whether it be top dogs or fresh faces. They paved the way for the sophomores and earned the rare respect of the seniors. By Rukiya Bey

Movin' In

Scared, nervous, confused—those were words that sophomores used to describe themselves on the first day of school. Moving from junior high to high school was a difficult, if not troublesome change. Bobbie Culley said, "I was afraid I wouldn't know anybody in my classes or even find my classes." Marena Gammons added, "I was afraid of not knowing anyone, but I was glad when I saw some of my friends."

Sophomores found that embarrassing moments were frequent through the first week. Some common ones involved ending up in the wrong classes, not getting a locker open, and getting lost. But everyone soon adjusted. They found that to enjoy their new high school life, they had to get into sports and clubs. Bennie Harris said, "I joined clubs, tried out for plays, and went to dances." Joining Student Council and foreign language clubs, and attending sports events were among the popular activities.

"The highlight of my sophomore year was when I became a football manager for our varsity team," said Wendi Minton. Students enjoyed their sophomore year to its fullest and look forward to movin' up. By Teresa Hromada

Magic Moments

Whether it be by singing, acting, dancing, playing a musical instrument, or helping behind the scenes, students were able to express themselves artistically--and just plain have a great time! The Band highlighted their year with a fun-filled trip to Georgia to perform in the Peach Bowl (and do some site-seeing as well) while the Orchestra and the choirs put on some superior shows in contests and concerts (ask Matt Medlock about it--you'll be sure to hear some interesting stories). When the Warrenaires performed "Give Me That Spotlight" for the first time on the stage, suddenly all that work made sense as everything came together just right. The Drama Department put on first-rate productions including Mr. Thom Feit's last musical (We can't believe it!), Guys and Dolls, which was definitely a high point for the Drama Department (the musical; not the fact that Mr. Feit won't be doing the musicals anymore)! Even working on Stage Crew is part of the excitement, though it's behind the scenes. When you patch in the mike on the soundboard and it actually works, that moment is thrilling! All these performing groups managed to entertain their audiences and bring them into the Magic of the Moment.

Standing Ovation

"It was great performing with my fellow actors and actresses . We love to do this and we take it seriously, but it is also a lot of fun," said senior Chris Nofke. The cast of both plays enjoyed the time they spent rehearsing and practicing to insure the plays would come off well. "The lines are hard to memorize but the satisfaction you receive afterwards makes the work worth it," said sophomore Audrey Miller. "I have loved participating in all the plays and every play is a different and sometimes even harder challenge," said senior Amy Hoehner, who starred in "The Real Inspector Hound", one of the fall plays.

The fall and children's plays were presented at the Performing Art Center on October 7,8,and 9 and December 3 and 4, respectively. Both performances were awarded with rave reviews from audience members. "I really liked "Black Comedy". It was very humorous and the audience was right on stage, which put the performance at a more personnel level," said senior Meredith Donges. Senior Janet Andres concluded, "The plays were very good." By Christina Van Y

Guys and Dolls

The spring musical promised to be a smashing success, and cast members and audience alike were not disappointed. Guys and Dolls was presented at the Performing Art Center on March 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th. Each show attracted a full house. Junior Chris Petsel, who portrayed Angie the Ox, said, "We put a lot of time and effort into the musical. We wanted to improve from last year and in order to do that, we had to perform our best and give it our all."

Being in the cast for Guys and Dolls was a memorable experience. Junior Jeremy Bennett, who played Harry the Horse, said, "Performing was very exciting! I had the best times in rehearsals joking and playing around with my friends." Junior Matt Usina,who portrayed Nicely-Nicely Johnson, said, "Working with the cast and crew was fun. They were the greatest!"

The thrill of performing made the musical unforgettable. Senior Elizabeth Payne, who played the lead role of Miss Adelaide, said, "My best time was singing 'A Person Can Develop a Cold' because it was one of my strongest numbers." Junior Mission Band player Jennifer Skinner summed up by saying, "When the final curtain went down we knew we'd done our best and that was the best feeling of all." By Lydia Serrano

Behind the Scenes

Besides the Stage Crew, who worked behind the scenes to insure a smooth technical performance, many also helped in making the musical Guys and Dolls a success. Anne Lakin, a sophomore Stage Crew member, said, " We created the set and ran the technical aspects of the show. Though it was fun, it was also hard work. Audrey Usina, Student Director, said, "The lighting, the microphone, the stage lift, all sets, and things as little as keeping the stage swept are responsibilities of Stage Crew." Sophomore Tim Baugh added, "The hardest time of production was Tech Week. All the last minute details had to come together." Junoir Melody Chapman added, "Keeping a good attitude during tech week was one of the hard things about the show." Mr. Scott Black replied, "We produced the sound and special effects needed to create an artistic version of New York City in 1948. Mr. Foster's art classes helped with the scenery."

Senior Paul Hogan, who played the drums for the show, said, "The musical was a great experience and a lot of fun." Mr. Doug Carter and Mrs. Janet Anderson also played music for the performance.

The show could not go on without the hard work of those working backstage. Their dedication played a large role in the production of Guys and Dolls. By Media Trent

Step

"This marching band season was great. Starting with Band Camp and ending with the trip to Georgia, it was a successful season, overall," said sophomore Katy Obert. The Gold Brigade marched to success, placing high in several invitationals, and receiving two Division One Superior ratings at the District and Regional competitions. The season ended with a fun-filled trip to Atlanta, Georgia, where the Gold Brigade performed in the Peach Bowl.

Junior William Wills said, "Georgia was a lot of fun. I had a really good time during the football game. It was a real experience marching in the Peach Bowl parade, pre-game, and half-time show." Senior Diane Gaskins added, "My favorite part of the trip was the visit to the Coca-Cola museum. I enjoyed myself the whole time, though. I got to hang out with my friends in the Band, and I also had the chance to become better acquainted with other Band members." Junior Chris Petsel concluded, "Georgia was a great place to spend my winter break. We worked hard during the fall in order to prepare for the trip, but it all paid off. It was a good experience, and I ended up having a good time." by Lydia Serrano

Tuning In

A sporting event was not the only activity where students received the chance to win awards in competitions. The Symphonic and Concert Bands both displayed their musical talents through concerts as well as participating in competitions.The Symphonic Band performed well in contest as a worthy competitor. Senior Chris Otsu said, "When I perform it allows me to show people what I've leaned and worked so hard for. This is the true reward of a musician.

Concert Band also put on oustanding performances. The highlight of their year was receing a superior rating at contest. "Concert band improved and I was proud of or=ur accomplishments," said senior Brian Simpson.Sophomore Mark Loker said, "We worked very hard all second semester in order to do well when contest time came along. We had challenging but fun music and I was excited that we were able to pull it off and get a first!" By Stephanie Van Y

Stay tuned

"Being in orchestra for seven years has given me a chance to learn things that are not in books, which will help me later in life," said senior Jennifer Vaughn. Most schools begin to offer orchestra in the sixth grade, but some students began playing much earlier. Junior Brandon Page began playing when he was four years old, and he has been playing ever since. Sophomore Josh Stayton said, " In the sixth grade I had to choose either band, orchestra, or choir. I'm glad I chose orchestra and I look forward to my future in the Warren Orchestra."

"I like being a part of orchestra and playing music with my friends," said junior Rukiya Bey. Being in orchestra required hard work and dedication. Students spent much of their time in rehearsals and worked together as a team. Together they made 1993-1994 a successful year. By Kimberly Sigg

High - Note

Through their singing and dancing, the Trebletones, Windsors, and Madrigals all worked hard. "I not only enjoy singing and dancing, but I also have a lot of friends in choir, which makes the class even more fun," said junior Jenni Baker, a member of the Trebletones. "I enjoy choir because of the many fun things we do as a group, and the experience I'm getting," said sophomore Jerame Stephenson, a member of the Windsors. Besides practicing every day during school, the choirs also practiced every Tuesday night. Junior Julia Sibert, a member of the Madrigals, said, "Through all the practice, we have accomplished a lot as a choir."

The choirs practicing always had its rewards. "Christmas at the zoo sticks out in my mind the most because we performed in the Whale and Dolphin Pavilion," said junior Jiffy Skinner, a member of the Trebletones. Senior Chris Clayton, a member of the Madrigals, said, "Choir gives me an opportunity to polish my singing, and I have fun performing." By Andrea Peck

Harmony

Through singing and dancing, choir made its mark this year. They sang and danced in many successful performances, and have many memories .“I really improved the quality of my voice and Ilearned how to be more professional this year,” said sophomore Jennifer Ramey, a member of the Crystalaires.

All the students strived to do their best. Most students felt they had achieved all of the goals they set and they walked away from the class feeling that they had advanced musically. “I’ve been surprised by the quality of the performances. The music is more advanced and requires a lot more work than in previous years. Having a choreographer is an added plus, " explained junior Aimee Trumpey, a member of the Golden Singers.

Students worked hard and wanted to perform the best they could. "I have dedicated three years to helping make choir the best it could be. I love to sing and I try very hard to make each performance the best," said senior Heather Long, a member of the Golden Singers. "I have only begun my career in the Warrenaires and I hope I can achieve even more," said sophomore Marcus Wilson, a member of Warren aires. By Media Trent

With Flying Colors

The color guard stepped in time as they worked toward a great season. Every member strived for perfection both during class as well as after school. Some work included was to go to band camp for practice from nine in the morning to nine at night. Junior Kenda Arney added, " Band camp was a week of hard but necessary work!" The many hours that were put forth were well rewarded with the "Best General Effect" title at the New Castle Invitational Contest. Sophomore Heather Ressler said, "I remember when everyone pulled together at regionals." Senior Beth Brown added,"Because of color guard I have learned how to work with others."

One thing that stood out was the trip to Atlanta, Georgia for the Peach Bowl. The group was invited to perform at the halftime show. Senior Michelle Thurston said," Going to Georgia for the halftime show of the Peach Bowl was fun and everyone had a good time both during the performance at the game and with their friends!" "Guard is a lot of hard work, but if you practice, you'll be rewarded," said senior Kelly Peterson. The season was full of hard times yet as a group they pulled together and got through their troubles. Practice makes Perfect

Special performing groups gave musicians and dancers a chance to display their talents. The special groups included Jazz Band, Dance Ensemble, String Ensemble, and the Drum Corp. Through participation in these groups, students were able to express their musical abilities in a different approach than the classroom setting.

Hard work and cooperation were key elements for group members. Junior Leland Keyt, a member of Dance Ensemble, said, "We felt like a great, big family. We had fun, but it was a lot of hard work." Senior Corey Webb, a member of the Drum Corps, said, "For being our first time competing at Bands of America, we did very well and beat many good drum corps. I think that the fact that seniors took charge and initiative was one of the factors."

Lack of recognition was a problem faced by some of the performers. Sophomore Andi Peter, a member of String Ensemble, said, "I want the school to know that we exist!" Sophomore Emily Swan, a member of the String Ensemble, said, "Classical music isn't for dweebs. It's extremely difficult to play and very beautiful to hear." Junior Melissa Meyer, a member of the Jazz Band, said, "I enjoyed Jazz Band because it was a great way to play different types of music from what we play in class, though it took a lot of hard work." By Kamala Nichols

Intelligence Report

The bell rings and the students make their way through the hall, wondering if they can make it before the tardy bell. They stop and talk to that friendly teacher or yell out a "hi" to their best friend as they catch a glimpse of their head as they rush by. "Tardies just kill me. I don't think I have the same amount of time everyone else has," said one student. Finally, everyone is in class and the teacher marks the attendance sheet, puts it into the folder, and begins class. Students begin to wonder whether it will be a lecture, class work, or maybe (if they're lucky) a little free time. The teacher says "Turn to page 25..." and silent sighs are felt throughout the classroom. The day continues and the students begin to slow down. "Even though school is great I just want a break every now and then," one student explained. Students agree that the time they spend in class is worth it; just tiring. By the time 2:55 rolls around everyone is dragging their feet, including teachers. "I love teaching, but everyone gets tired. My students are great but I don't expect them to be any more than human," one teacher sympathized.

Mind-Boggling

Many students saw science as an interesting subject with many possibilities for success. Kathy Huizinga, senior, said, "Mr. Landy makes Physics fun by letting us have more of a hands-on experience rather than book work." Melissa Montgomery, junior, agreed, saying, "Chemistry was fun because we got to work with the actual chemicals and not just read about them in a book." Eric Rash, senior, took Anatomy, Physiology, and Genetics and plans to use them in his career as a physical therapist. "I learn from actually going through the motions and doing stuff instead of just listening to the teacher. Hands-on experience is just more fun."

The students are not the only ones who enjoy the hands-on teaching concept. Teachers think that it is "a great way to learn." Mrs Norris said," I go slower in my classes so that my students learn the material.The slower I go, the more chances for success I give my students."

Applying concepts to real life is what science seems to be all about. Krissy Kurbursky is taking Earth Science for a credit only but said," I had fun in there. It was not exactly what I thought it would be. We actually got to apply it to real life instead of just listening to lectures." By Alley Johnson

Calculations

"I plan to go into financing and accounting and the accounting courses that are here are some of the best that are offered in the high schools," said senior Jason Delk. Math skills will benefit many students in their future careers. Senior Mary Kissling and junior Heather Short agreed that the math skills they are learning will help them attain the highest level of math needed for their future careers in the medicine field.

Along with the help of the courses offered, hands on training also contributed in aiding students in their understanding of math. "The graphing calculator has helped me by showing me a more accurate visual picture instead of working with hand-drawn graphs," commented junior Crystal Grave. Mr. Rice commented, "Hands-on experience is ten times better than telling the students to get their books out and turn to page 196. It gives them a chance to get out of the classroom atmosphere and into a 'real life' situation."

Many students understood the importance of math skills. Sopomore Wesley Sparks said ,"I know that math skills are going to play an important role in my future so I'm glad that the curriculum was so good and I learned to much." by Jennifer Stayton

Body Mind & Spirit

"My mind is challenged throughout the day, and Physical education is a break that challenges my body," said senior Leon Howland. Gym classes may have seemed easy to observers, however, some were very challenging. "My class was hard work and it took as much out of me to do sit-ups as it did to do the work in X-geometry," said sophomore Bradley Griggs.

One of the hardest things to do was to go to class with wet hair; however, every sophomore had this experience at least once . "I hate going to class with wet hair because it doesn't make a good impression on the guys," said Kelly Waelde. The required six week period of swimming supplied the material for many unforgettable memories.

Even though it is only required that a student take gym their sophomore year many students take optional classes that encourage the extra use of their body. "I take weight lifting because I like keeping myself in shape," said junior Matt Wier. "I take Life Saving class because I like the idea of being able to save lives and I also get to swim, which helps me on the swim team, said senior Kent Nickalson. Physical education class offer students many ways to keep their body in shape while keeping their mind in top condition. By Christina Van Y

" English is very important because we use it everyday," said junior Tammy Hoschgesang. Many English teachers have the ablility to challenge their students and keep them interested. "Because of the many teachers who have challenged me throughout the years, I have learned many techniques which help me to write to the best of my abiliity," said senior Heather Stapelton.

"Literature class is very important because it helps me understand what I'm reading," said sophomore Kalin Reed. With the many choices available everyone is sure to find something that they like. Senior Keri Dodd explained, "College composition is very challenging because of the demands on me to get everything done by set deadlines." A popular comment of many English students in English classes is that the work is so time consuming. "When I do my homework, most of my time is spent doing English homework or writing essays; however, I enjoy that time because English is my best subject," said junior Tracy Whisner.

"Writing and understanding what you're writing is a skill," said sophomore Amy Marion. "English is a class in which to better one's written and verbal skills," added senior Lyman Battle Jr. "When I look back on how much I've learned, I've got to be thankful for it," concluded senior Cortney Bellamy. By Danita Davis and Kendra Washington

Artistic Expression

"My artwork allowed me to express my feelings or emotions in a way that people could view them,"explained sophomore Kalin Reed. "It was the variety of things to do in art that made the subject interesting to me," added senior Brandon Rippel.

To Tasha Kincy, sophomore, it was the simple fact that she loves to draw that got her into the class. Zach Wilks' interest developed because of his dream of selling clay pots at a Grateful Dead Concert.

"There are many reasons why students like art such as--a break from harder classes, freedom to express yourself, and being able to do what you do best," said senior Heather Hanson. A student in ceramics said, " I enjoy this class because I've always enjoyed working with my hands . I think that you can express how you feel by the different sculptures and other different kinds of projects that you can make." Others want to go into professions involving art skills like, graphic design, commercial arts, and cartoonists.

Art simply gives the students a chance to be themselves. Like Kenneth Fleming , a senior, said, " You have to get it out somehow."

¡Hola!

Bonjour! ✷ Gutentag

"I enjoy taking German because of their different culture," said senior Amie Himes. Many students took a foreign language for the challenge. They enjoyed learning about the variety of cultures and customs that other nationalities practice. "Japanese is different compared to other languages. They have so many different customs and it is hard to learn all of them," said junior Stephanie Sweet, a second year student.

Some students took a foreign language class because of their family background or future career plans. "My family is German so I thought that it would be good to learn the language," said senior Nicole Baker, a fourth year German student. Tara Smith said " I am taking Latin because I plan to have a career in medicine and Latin is the basis of medicine."

Senior Heather Stapleton, a fourth year French student, said, "I enjoy being able to successfully communicate with people in another language." Heather spent a month in France over summer vacation and was able to use her knowledge of the French language.

Students enjoyed learning about new cultures other than their own. Senior Matt Zentz said, "Spanish has been very challenging, and it has expanded my appreciation for new cultures." By Kimberly Sigg

Facts of Life

Home Economics has evolved from a class truly dedicated to bettering a student in the areas of sewing and cooking to a class that helped students learn the proper ways to care for kids and to better themselves. Students learned the proper steps to having a good household, keeping up with personal hygiene and many other necessary facts of life. "I have learned many things as far as the right ways to care for kids and how to keep up a good household," said sophomore LaShawn Gayheart.

Students discovered that Home Economics was not exactly what they expected it to be. They soon learned that it would be a challenge and that they would be working harder than they ever thought. "The class (advanced clothing) demanded more out of me than I thought it would," explained senior Maura White. By Christina Van Y

Application

The Walker Career Center offered many Business classes to students who will later be seeking a career in these areas. Some of the classes included accounting, keyboarding, short hand, retailing, print marketing, and others that opened doors to students who were looking for a early start in creating a background for their careers.

"I took the Accounting class, because I want to own my own business when I get older," said sophomore Chris Wright. Junior Matt Wright said, "I took the class because it will help me manage my money better."

The typing class showed students how to touch type. Junior Jeff Lund said, "I wanted to take the class because it would help me out with term papers in college." Also offered were the computer aided classes. Junior David Dusick explained, "I liked the class because we got to work on the computers and learn more about working on the technical half of a career."

"The opportunities offered at the Walker Career Center give students the chance to broaden their knowledge in many areas. The classes help students get a jump start on their careers," concluded junior William Olnick.

High-Tech

Industrial Arts classes offered students an opportunity to receive experience for the future. Junior Carlos Alicea said, "I took Electronic Technology because I plan on making it my career. I got a lot of hands-on training, instead of just reading books and doing worksheets." Sophomore Olivia Stanfield added, "I plan on becoming an architect, so taking Drafting was good experience and good preparation. It was also a fun class and I liked it because it came to easy to me."

For some, the teaching staff had a big impact on how they enjoyed the class. Junior A.J. Arvin said, "I liked that the teachers helped you to understand and got into the material with you. I felt like I really knew what I was doing." Junior Jason Brown said, "My teachers really showed me how to work on cars. I liked that I learned so much."

The quality of the Industrial Arts program was a big plus for many students. "I took Power Mechanics because it's my hobby and to learn about cars," said sophomore Tom Smith. "I plan on going into Autobody as a senior, so it was good preparation." Senior Ben Stoltz concluded, "In my auto-mechanics class, I learned a lot, even more than in past years. The class gave me a good base for my career." By Lydia Serrano

Write-On!

Creative minds, hard workers, and dedicated students diligently put together the Owl and Wigwam for students to read and recollect about school events . The Owl covered a wide variety of topics ranging from the famous Top Ten list compiled by Editor-in-Chief Heather Scott and Managing Editor/ Feature Editor Darren Shannon to the controversial sex survey. "Newpaper was definitely a time-consuming job, but I enjoyed every minute of it. The staff took so much pride in their work and was serious about producing a great newspaper for the school," said Photo Editor, senior Derek Hoffman.

Countless hours staying for meetings, typing stories, researching ideas, and taking pictures was a small fraction of what the Wigwam staff was all about. "Yearbook class was smaller than regular calsses. This gave us the opportunity to develop relationships with other students in the class along with the teacher that you would not necessarily find in other classes," said Performing Arts Editor, junior Lydia Serrano.

Co-Editor-in-Chief of the yearbook, Christina Van Y summed it all up by saying, "The best part about publications was that it was not a class, but a special club that got along so well and had a lot of fun. I felt that everyone taking this class had very ambitious goals and a sense of responsibilty to the school to report the news fairly and to the best of their knowledge. That is what journalism is all about." By Kristen Clark

"The students in publications are very unique and creative--that's what makes it fun!" explained Publications Director Gayle Harmon. Photo by Michelle Olnick

Exploring

The International Relations class participated in the model UN at Chicago along with twelve hundred other students from around the country. The IR students represented Palestine and Cape Verde. "I have been involved with this for two consecutive years. Last year I was in a regular United Nations committee, but this year I participated in the International Court of Justice, which opened new doors and showed me many more aspects of the United Nations," said senior Heather Stapleton. Senior Jon Ferguson added, "The trip was worthwhile and I was very excited that Kristen Clark and I won the only award!"

World History, U.S. History, Economics, Government, and many other social studies courses were among the choices offered to students, giving them a chance to learn about the past so that they could get an educated perspective about what might lie ahead. Sophomore Ann Herzberg said, "I felt that taking World History would make it easier to understand U.S. History." Senior Tosha Russell explained, "I took Psychology in order to better my communications with others, and also to learn about why people think and act as they do."

Junior Darcy Cross added, " Sociology class was crazy every day. It was fun, even though it took all semester to persuade Mr. Bush to take us to the Threshold, and the sound never did seem quite right in those old movies." "It is really interesting to learn about all of the many wars and treaties that have shaped our world and made it what it is today," concluded sophomore Jonna McGinley. By Christina Van Y

TOP OF THE CLASS

Strengthening the mind while having fun, was the objective of such teams as the Brain Game, Speech team, Debate team,and the Science club which participates in the Science Olympiad. Senior member of the Brain Game, Ed Ward, said, "Competition takes a lot of hard work and perserverance, but it proves to be very rewarding in the end."

Speech and Debate provided many different areas for each member to excel in. Senior Bula Barau said, "We have practices once a week for two hours where we can get a chance to perform before our peers and receive helpful criticism." This criticism helped prepare the team for competition. Bula explained, " It takes a lot of commitment, but it's worth it."

Science club participated in many experiments, including Science Olympiad. Sophomore Stephanie Van Y said, "I've always been interested in science. The science club goes to places such as Purdue University to compete in various science events--identifying rocks and minerals, chemistry labs,and bridge building." Not only did the science club, Brain Game, Speech team, and Debate team provide academic advancement, but also a time to have fun while learning. By Andrea Peck

Setting the Score Straight

All the hours spent practicing, all the times going over drills just one more time getting it perfect, helped athletes to push themselves to the limit. Hard work and dedication were key points in helping the teams achieve their goals. The afternoons each team spent practicing added up to a season of success and pride for Warren athletes. One highlight that started the year was the Girls Soccer team winning their sectional championship. "It was a great year for soccer. Our team was pumped up and ready for action every game," said senior team member Shannon McCrosson. The Gymnastics team earned themselves a regional victory. Seniors Alisha Boots and Kathy Huizinga went on to compete in state for their second time. "The team worked well together and we all fought for one another. I am proud of what the team accomplished," said senior Alisha Boots. Seniors Courdney Satterfield, Steven McDaniel, and Jesse Bender advanced to the state Wrestling competition. Many hours of rough, tough, and dirty practicing led the football team through a tough season full of surprises and success. "We had a successful season and the team's hard work shined through at the end, " said senior Clinton Sharp. Together, each Warren Athletic team carried the black and gold colors on to the field, court, or pool while setting the score straight.

Against All Odds

A new attitude, a strong work ethic, and great leadership from an outstanding senior class paved the way for the 1993 Football team and what a season it was. " I have enjoyed playing on the team ever since I was a sophomore and I'm glad that during my last year the team worked well together and was a success," said co-captain Clinton Sharp.

The Warriors finished their season ranked 10th in the state. The overall record of 7-4 included 2 wins apiece against the Richmond Red Devils (ranked 7th) and the always tough Lawrence North team. Other victories were recorded against Cathedral, Lawrence Central, and Pike.

The Warriors were named the Channel 8 TV Team of the Week and were presented with a plaque by famed TV sports personalityMark Patrick at practice and featured on Channel 8. "The team had been working well together and the award made each player even just a little bit more excited," explained junior Mack Shead. By Bradly Griggs -

Going the Distance

With hard work and true dedication the girls cross-country season was a striding success. Many girls had set goals not only for themselves but for the entire team and saw the team meet the goals. This season coach JaneSeymore had more runners than she's had in years. "I'm not used to having so many runners. Sometimes I'd turn around and half of them would be gone and I'd have no idea where they were," said coach Seymore

Since there is so much construction going on at what is now the back of the school, the girls home course was dramatically changed. "It was hard getting used to a different home course, but I made the most out of the situation," said junior Dennell Guy. To add to all the confusion, after school conflicts started to arise. For example, senior Meredith Donges said, "It was not easy trying to juggle soccer and cross-country, but both coaches were very understanding and decided they would share me".

The Girls Cross Country team came in second as a team at county. With their second place winning they advanced to regionals. Although Kristen Morgan was the only one who advanced to Semi-State, the team was behind her 100%, and decided they would practice the extra week with her so she wouldn't be alone. In semi-state Kristen came in 18th. As Erica Emmons said,"I really think it was good for the team to get to be at a few of the major meets this year; hopefully we'll be the ones running,not watching, next year." There were many triumphs made by girls cross-country this season. The season was a success because everyone worked together for the good of the team. By Stephanie Van Y

Cool Runnings

The boys Cross country season started out with warm and enjoyable weather but by the end, the boys were running in slush, heavy rain, and snow. The boys even ran in weather that would curdle anyone's blood. "Running in cold weather is a talent--you must remember to breathe consistantly and to not allow your body to become too warm," said sophomore Brandon Vicelli.

Many boys found that not only did the cold and wet weather sometimes get in t he way, but so did injuries. "My injury was very painful; however, I kept with it and tried to not think of the pain," said senor Eric Grill.

Even though the team had to conquer the weather and injuries they looked towards the future and got over their problems with teamwork and dedication. "We all worked together. We supported the ones with injuries and they supported us when we ran. Everyone worked together for the good of the team," said Team captain, senior Andy Cornett. The team was brought together because of hardship and weather. Each one of the runners had a goal to reach and nothing got in their way . The team was strong and so the season was a success. " We were a strong team this year, and we worked well together," said Coach Joe Brooks. By Derek Hoffman

Perserverance

Not too many teams faced great adversity such as the volleyball team. The Lady Warriors were challenged every game with hungry opponents looking for prey to kill. To the dismay of many opposing teams, the Warriors prevailed. But the wins did not always come easy. Hours of practicing to defeat their challengers demanded intense effort and hard work. "The practices sometimes took their toll on us, but it was worthwhile when we would win our games. It gave us a sense of accomplishment when our hard work and dedication to volleyball paid off against our opponents," said senior Katie Ness.

The highlight of the season for many of the girls was playing Ben Davis. Ben Davis was known for its power serves and agile moves. The Lady Warriors, though, gave the Giants a run for their money. In the end, the Giants won, but not without being challenged. The Warriors proved to be a team to be reckoned with. "We had great coaches and we got along great. The atmosphere among the girls made it much easier for us to work together and be a better team," explained junior Shelly Shaver.

The camaraderie on the team helped during the bad times. The special bonds formed lasted throughout the season and on past that. "No matter what happened, I had fun playing with my friends and supporting those in need," concluded junior Beth Hessman. By Kristen Clark

Earning Respect

The Warriors came out charging, looking to strike fear into the hearts of challenging opponents. With aggressive and experienced players, the boys' soccer team earned respect from other powerhouse teams such as North Central, Carmel, and Noblesville. Countless hours of running, kicking, fielding, and scoring proved to be vital for a very successful season. "The soccer team had put in many hours of practicing to play their best. I liked being on the team. Soccer is an international sport and very popular in my country, Spain, and I appreciate the way people here take it very seriously," said senior Rafael Ceres, a foreign exchange student from Pompelona, Spain.

The Warriors were finally recognized as a threatening powerhouse team. They won game after game, repeating their quick and agile moves that left their opponents breathless. The soccer team had a 13-3-1 record, including a 10 game winning streak. The Warrior's streak ended in the second round of sectionals, though, in a tough and heartbreaking loss to Hamilton Southeastern. "It was hard losing in the sectionals to a team we had already beaten, but it was fun getting there," said sophomore Brad Griggs. Senior Varsity Captain Gregg Hewitt added, "I really enjoyed playing on this team. We showed people what Warren was made of." The season ended with a record of 13-5-1. By Derek Hoffman

Sectional Champions

"The girls played hard and it was disappointing to see the season end so soon," said head coach Gary Roberts. Roberts also added, "We had one of the greatest season ever. I was really proud of these girls. Most of the players were seniors and I knew they wanted to play in the final four, but I think they did a great job." Ranked in the top ten throughout the season, the Lady Warriors won 16 straight games only to be stopped in the first round of the regionals against Evansville Harrison.

"We had a great season. We really played great and the seniors really stepped up when they were really needed," said senior captain Gina Riggles. The Warriors played hard and defeated the Richmond Red Devils 2-0. to win the sectional crown. Senior Dawn Mullis said, "This was a great feeling to win sectionals. This group of senior girls really wanted to win it before we graduated. We have had some bad luck in the past, and we wanted it to real bad." By David Hewitt

Winning Matchpoint

Spirits ran strong in the hearts of the boys tennis team. Every team player was out on the court scoring for the team. "The team was very supportive. I enjoyed playing with my fellow teammates. Tennis challenged me to work hard and to improve my skills," said junior Jason Britton, second year varsity member. Josh Rayburn added, "This was my second year on the team, and my teammates were great and supportive. I enjoyed playing tennis and being part of a team that depended on one another.

The team had a tough season, but together they pulled through the difficult times working their hardest to achieve goals they set to reach. "As a senior it was nice to leave knowing that the team you were playing for was not just a winning team but also a proud one," said senior Matt McMaster. "It was really easy to play on a team when everyone worked together," said sophomore Tony Peters. By Christina Van Y

In The Green

Golf was a sport of patience which required great skill and concentration. The girls golf team was comprised of members with the qualities essential to be a successful team. Even though the record showed the team not in winning numbers, the Lady Warriors came out on top with their attitudes and dedication. "Our season was full of ups and downs. Our attitudes towards the game made it a memorable year," said senior varsity Captain Sarah Park, a three-year varsity player. Sophomore Amanda Burgess added, "All of the girls got along great. I feel if you enjoy your teammates, you enjoy the game."

Friendships developed during the season were as important as winning. Having a team with a special camaraderie made the losses not as bad. Junior Amber Cook said, "Even though we didn't have a winning season, we had a great time being together as a team." The Lady Warriors took in stride the defeats, but still displayed a positive outlook and encouraged one another to do their best. The season ended with a record of 2-11. By Andrea Peck

Wet n' Wild

As the boys' swim team started their season, they set many goals, mainly to win more meets than they had last year. Sophomore Charles Brandt said, "My personal goals for the season were to cut time in my events and to make it to the second round of the Sectionals swim meet." Junior Steve Wieland said, "I worked really hard to try to make it through the first round of Sectionals with my best time of the season." Sectional Coach of the the Year Jeff Leeke added, "I wanted to improve the swimmers' skills that were on the team last year and make sure that all the swimmers enjoyed the sport."

Warrior swimmers made sure that hard work and fun went hand in hand. Senior Greg Hewitt, captain, said, "The most fun we had was when the team went to eat at Ponderosa after the big win over Shelbyville. The team was really up because it was an important victory for us and we really had a great time." Ken Nicholson, senior, added, "It felt great when we beat Shelbyville! The whole team was really pumped. It was one of the best moments of the season." Junior Bryce Nixon said, "The team had a lot of fun during practices and meets. Even though we sometimes had conflicts, we pulled together when we needed to and tried our best." By Bradley Griggs and Lydia Serrano

At their Best

Being the best was in the minds of all the swimmers as they watched the new principal come to their meet and enjoy himself. They were proud of Warren and were determined to perform well at all times.The girls wanted to be a winning and excited team. They wanted to know they won because they worked together to make the team the best. Each girl, however, had their own personal goals for the season. "I wanted the team to do much better than last year but I also wanted to improve my times and stroke. I knew by improving my time I would help the team," said junior Jenny Coffin.

The year was full of challenges and surprises. Many times the girls did not know what the score would be at the end of the meet. "I always hated it when the score was going to be decided by the 400 yard freestyle relay and I was the anchor for the relay team," said sophomore Lisa Dean.

"As a senior it was great being on such an exciting team. I will always remember the fun we had and goals we reached. I only hope the team does even better next year," said senior Christina Van Y. By Christina Van Y Photo at right: "I had a good season. Nothin' but Net

As the Warriors boys' basketball team tipped off their season, they accomplished many goals as a team and as individuals. The main goals the team achieved were winning 50% of their games and improving on the technical parts of their game. Captain Mike McCray, senior, said, "I achieved many goals for myself, but the one that I worked toward the most was to control the team." Mike McCray was the leading scorer for the Warriors with three-point shooting twins Jerome and Jermaine Robinson second.

The team improved on their whole game and had a season record of 11-9, and headed into sectionals on a good note by beating Franklin Central 57-54 in the first round of sectionals, who they had lost to in the regular seaaon in double overtime by a slim margin of 76-75.

As the season ended, the game that was still on everyone's mind was the away game against Martinsville. Sophomore Damian Chaubet said, "In this game I proved to the team that I belonged on varsity, and in Martinsville I scored my season high of 18 points." The game at Martinsville came down to a last minute tip in by Junior David Jones. David added, "I didn't think about it I just did it, and after it was all over I had the greatest feeling I ever had." By Bradley Griggs

For the love of the Game

The Lady Warriors demonatrated great skills in shooting, ball-handling, and defense while improving with each game. They ended with a record that surpassed the wins from last year's season. The Junior Varsity did as well as the Varsity and broke even at 500 with a record of 7-7. "At first we didn't play together very well, then it all started coming together," said sophomore Natalie Palmer of the J.V. team. "I think that we all learned how to work together well," added sophomore Amy Marion of the J.V. team.

The Varsity team dedicated many hours to perfecting their abilities and achieving their goals. "I had many goals for myself and I hoped that I would achieve them. Since I'm a senior this year was my last to show Warren what I could do," said senior Missy Miller of Varsity squad.

With wins over several powerhouse teams like North Central and Arlington, the Warriors exhibited the skillsmaking themselces a dominant force on the court. Even though the team lost to the likes of high-ranking teams, the Lady Warriors never stopped giving it their all. By Kristy McPhillips

Seniors Jesse Bender, Steve McDaniel and Cordney Satterfield outpinned their opponents in the sectionals, regionals, and semi-state to advance to the state fimals representing the Warriors. Heading into the meet these three wrestlers looked forward in gaining a sate crown and recognition for their outstanding wrestling talent, but only to be defeated in their quest. However, they did not go home empty-handed. Jesse Bender placed third, Steve McDaniel placed fifth, and Cordney Satterfield earned a seventh position with the team receiveing a fourth overall in the State Finals.

"This season was great as far as a season goes, as far as wins and losses somebody's gotta lose and somebody has to win," boasted Steven McDaniel, who had a remarkabliue dual record of 32-0. Senior wrestler Cordney had lost his sister during the season but it only made him fight harder. "I did it for my sister as well as the team," explained Cordney Satterfield. On a better note Steven McDaniel explained, "Going to the state was the ultimate accomplishment, after all the work it really pays off even to place."

The best meet for the team was the meet at Decatur Central in the duel match. Lydell Hall further explained "The team on a whole worked well together and stuck together and that's why this season turned out so well, and that's why we were so successful. " Mr Hurley added , " We enjoyed this team a great deal. We had a group of seniors that were fine men and helped shape the younger wrestlers, our strength was in the lower and upper weights. We had a group of juniors and sophomores that were alot of fun and should continue Warren Central's great wrestling tradition." By Kamala Nichols

Perfect 10

The girls gymnastics team had many leaps and bounds to overcome throughout the season, they continued to set goals and achieve them. The girls showed true dedication by practicing every day after school and on saturdays starting in November. However, the actual season didn't start until January. Coach Seymore said, "It takes true hard work and perseverance to become the best gymnast you can. The girls didn't always enjoy all the practicing , but when they win a competition they realize how important their practicing really was." Many of the girls continued their practice in the off season. Kathy Huizinga said, "Some of the other girls and I worked out in gyms and lifted weights to keep ourselves in shape." The team found out that every little bit mattered.

Gymnastics needs every member of the team competing well to win a meet. Of the four events; vault, uneven parallel bars, balance beam, and floor exercises the girls chose the event they wanted to participate in. Senior Alisha Boots said,"I have trouble with the uneven parallel bars, but the chalange is why I enjoy them so much. " The girls did compete well in their meets.They managed an undefeted season, first place at county, and a second in sectionals. By Stephanie Van Y

The Varsity and Junior Varsity baseball teams started out their seasons with positive attitudes and ended with 6-14 and 6-7 records. Some of the best moments of the season came with the bad ones. "The best moment of my season was when I stopped a ground ball by diving," said junior Jason Lowry. He ended up with an ankle injury, though, and had to sit out a few games. Sophomore Tony Peters said, "My worst game was against Perry Meridian because we got blown out." The score of Perry Meridian's game was 2-10.

Some of the goals for the season varied from doing well in games to setting personal records. "One of our goals for the season was to stay together as a team and have a chance at County," said sophomore Butch Castor, the Varsity pitcher and first baseman. The Varsity team went on to qualify for the Final Four in the Marion County Tournament. Jason Lowry said, "Another goal was to win half of our games, and the only way to accomplish this was by practicing."

Although spring brought rain and unpredictable weather, the baseball players enjoyed their season. "Even though we didn't win a lot of games, it was fun being a part of this team. We worked well together as a team," said Jay Woodburn. By Teresa Hromada

Batter up

From Varsity to Junior Varsity, pitcher to outfield, and lead-off to clean-up, this year's Softball team upheld the winning tradition at Warren. "I think that one of the best things about this season is that after a bad start, we were able to come back and win more than we expected," said sophomore pitcher Rachael Visker The team's success was attributed to their hard work and dedication throughout the season. "We really pulled together even after a slow start, the team never gave up. By the end of the season, we were working as a team," said senior Tracy Bryan.

"The team started out slow and gradually picked up tempo. We had a winning streak of seven in a row, and that, to me, was the highlight of the season. ," said Coach Dave Stroud. By Kristy McPhillips

Back on Track

When the boys track season opened against one of the best teams in the state, the team found an understanding of where they stood against the best. Senior Hank Barker said, " The team learned many valuable lessons on the track at an early stage in the season. Because ofthis we pulled it together later in the year to become one of the best teams in the state." After losing the first meet the Warriors went on to win big meets, such as the Richmond Relays and the Madison Heights Invitational. While still on a hot streak the Warriors placed second in the Warren Relays and fourth in County. Coach Dennis McNulty said, " The team performed as a top twenty team since the beginning of the season and wasn't recognized until the end of the season."

Sophomore Jeff Martin said, "In junior high, getting a first wasn't that difficult, bdut in high school you must work really hard to win. With my work I was able to break two records at the high school." Many records were broken in the year of 94 track and many personal goals were achieved for the younger athletes. Junior Paul Banks added, " After being the Bomber Boiler champion I was the one who was setting the standards for everyone else and I was the one who had to work hard to stay at the top. That is the way track goes." Senior Austin Johnson said, " In the close meets, the field events and the long distance team pulled us to victory." As many new times were set and times are reached for the first time in ten years the team goes on with great hope and improvement.

Good is not enough...

Though plagued by illness and injury, the girls track team had a much improved season. Coach Janel Denny said, "We've improved from the last two years. Seniors Lori Hintz, Janet Andres, Meredith Donges, and Kavonna Heeter were very competitive. A season highlight was placing fourth at the Warren Relays." Sophomore Kristen Morgan said, "My times weren't as good as they could have been due to my ankle injury and illness. They did pick up towards the end of the season, though."

Team spirit and unity were the key elements that gave the track team a successful season. Senior Kavonna Heeter said, "The triple meet with Pike and Perry was great because that's when we started to pull together as a team. Before, we had been more individualistic, but after that, we acted more like a team." Senior Patrice Petty said, "I noticed more cooperation during warm-ups, such as running the warm-up lap together." Junior Amanda Hacker said, "We had a new team spirit this year. The sophomores had a strong will to win because they knew how. We even had a prayer before each meet! All in all, The track team had a season that they could be proud of." By Lydia Serrano

Hole in One

As spring starts each year, so does the golf team's excitment toward their game. "Golf is not an easy sport. It is a lot harder than what people think," said sophomore James Spinks. With strong senior leadership, the team worked together hoping to achieve many of the goals that were never reached last year. "The team has improved. We worked together and helped each other improve our game," said senior Jason Delk. "Our goal this year was to do the best we could," said Coach Gary Jacob.

First time players were challenged throughout the season. They worked hard and played well, improving themselves and showing everyone that they were out to achieve success. "I worked hard all season and improved my game so I would get better," said sophomore Nick Conway.

Serving it up

Although the team was plagued with many conflicts they were able to put everything behind them come match time. With a record of 5-7, they boosted the season record. "The team record was the best it's been since I started playing tennis," said junior Lydia Serrano.

"It has been a really good season, especially for JV. We've won more than half of all our matches. This was the best year for J.V. and Varsity," commented sophomore Joy Vang. "The most memorable game was Arlington, which we won 5-0. Not because they were sad but because they were nice about it, " replied senior Mandy Lopez. "Our match against Mt.Vernon 1-4 seems to stick out the most this season. It was a great win not only for the team, but for each player, too, "explained junior Angie Vanlue.

Junior Heather Smith explained,"This year was especially challenging, but extremely exciting because of it being my first year playing doubles." "Playing doubles was extremely fun, especially when I smashed the ball across the net, right at my opponent's feet," said Autumn Fuchner.

Although the team loved matches, they enjoyed spending time together away from the home field. "We loved going to eat and playing in away matches because we didn't have that many," explained Lydia Serrano. "I am just glad I made the team and could support the other players," said Autumn Fuchner." I am really proud of the way the girls have stuck out the season. They really backed each other up in hard times, and they won," said Coach Gretchen Brooks. By Kamala Nichols

The 1993-1994 cheerleading season brought about many memories for the squad. " When we won Marion County Fair I felt awesome," said senior Elizabeth Payne. The cheerleading squad placed first in Marion County and fifth in the state. Some had special memories from other events. Sophomore Amber Bell said, " My favorite memory was spending time at camp." Junior Nikki Powell felt that they had a good season and supported their teams all the way.

The squad sponsored a car wash and a clinic for some of the future up in coming cheerleaders. Mrs. Linda Sponsel one of the two coaches said, " I feel that this clinic was a good opportunity for the girls, the older ones and the younger ones. I think that the girls all had a good time." The girls worked together and encouraged audience particapation at all of the games. Junior Missy Byrd said, " I enjoy being in front of the crowd and showing them my enthusiasim." Going to camp, competition and performing at the games was an experience for all. The girls had the chance to get to know one another better and form some good friendships. " This was first squad that I have been on in which everyone got along and really worked together, " said Senior Mechelle Castor. Story by Kimberly Sigg

Real People

"Nothing looked this good before, we're the class of '94" echoed throughout the halls as the senior class proudly led the way for the underclassmen to follow. With leadership roles, the seniors defined their class with dignity and full of spirit which ignited a senior pride among the 543 soon to be graduating. But as the seniors made their mark on the school, the juniors were busy making sure they were heard, too. Not being overshadowed by the seniors, the juniors gave the seniors a run for their money. The juniors distinguished themselves at games, dances, and other various school activities by exuberantly displaying their class spirit. Being new to the school did not intimidate the sophomores, who participated in the numerous activities that took place throughout the course of the year and had an active voice in student decisions. The sophomores never strayed far behind the pack. It was a long battle to prove which class was the best; but in the end, together they proved that the separation of the classes meant nothing more than a little friendly competition. Together the three classes demonstrated not only to their fellow students but to the teachers who had taught and supported them throughout the year that being a senior, a junior, or a sophomore was just a grade distinction and, under the surface, they were all Real People.

Top Ten Joys of Teaching off a Cart:

1. No one really knows where you are, where you've been, or where you're going.
2. Cart-pushing makes it difficult to determine whether you are staying fit or having one.
3. Being on the cart is better than being on the wagon. (I think!)
4. Multiple opportunities to view many construction sites and construsction workers.
5. Cart-pusher gets to know podiatrist and chiropractor on a first-name basis.
6. Creates new empathy for the homeless.
7. Creative lesson plans--oops! I forgot that! (...challenging to take entire room with you wherever you go)
8. No bulletin boards and no room decorations.
9. New opportunities to work on social skills.
10. Exercise! Exercise! Exercise!

Working for the community, administrators make important decisions that affect the Warren Township Schools."With all the changes that have come about in the past year, Warren is now more ready than ever to meet the challenge of providing quality education in innovative settings," explained Craig Hintz. "Things are always changing," agreed Phil Douglas, adding, "It's great to be in a district that isn't reluctant to prepare for the future."

Making our Mark

Students were given the chance to socialize with friends while still working towards a goal by joining clubs. "It is fun to get out there and meet new people. We have a blast and yet we accomplish things." Through participation in organizations, students have the opportunity to meet with people they might not have time to talk with during school. " Many of my friends are in Student Council and other organizations. I have the chance to catch up on things with them and plus discuss what school activities we as a club are going to do." National Honor Society memebers, in cooperation with the Kidney Foundation, put in their time at Washington Square Mall, wrapping gifts for donations during the holiday season. Another group that went out into the community was "Just Say No". They traveled to the Elementary schools trying to inforce the "Just Say No" message about drug use. "I have been involved in this successful group for a couple of years and I love seeing how we affect the students." Both Together and as individuals, the students each Made their own Mark!

Helping Hands

Involved with school activities as well as community services, Student Council has reached out to the students and faculty along with the people of the community. Vice President, Sneha Patel said, "Student Council has participated in numerous activities, and both the officers and members have done an outstanding job putting them on. I'm really glad I had the opportunity to have a leading role in this organization."

The school activities that were sponsored by Student Council gave the whole student body a chance to get involved. "Student Council helped to build theenthusiasm which made Homecoming asuccess," said senior Heather Scott. Senior April Bardes said, "Spirit week and Winterfest gave students a break from the routine of school. It was a lot of fun." Although school activities were great spirit boosters, some students enjoyed the community services like the C.A.R.E. for kids program. "The Children's Christmas Party was really neat because we got to help kids that were underprivileged and we had fun playing with them," said senior Eric Grill. President Amy Moeller summed it all up and said, "We've had an excellent year in Student Council. We had active participation in all our activities and we're really proud of the Council." by Jennifer Stayton

"Being a Student Council advisor has been one of the most rewarding roles of my life," said Beth Wolff. Photo by Michelle Olnick

Service

Students help the community

Service clubs provided an opportunity for students to make a difference throughout the school and the community. Just Say No, Indiana Teen Institute, and Project S.E.T. (Student Exploratory Teaching) let students get involved, whether it be by teaching elementary students or warning against the dangers of drug abuse. "Just Say No goes to elementary schools and puts on skits about drug use. We help kids learn how to say 'No', which will help our community's future," commented sophomore Kristen Cox. Junior Lydia Serrano said, "Indiana Teen Institute is all about helping others to stay away from drugs and developing their own leadership potential." Organinzations such as these helped students to make a difference for the future of the community as well as their own future career.

Leadership

Clubs give students the chance to better our school

"The Principal's Advisory Council gives us a chance to give input on how to improve the school," said junior Amber Cook. Leadership Clubs are offered in order to give students the opportunity to speak their voice in matters concerning the school. In many of the clubs the students are nominated to their positions by either the teachers or the student body. " It made me feel good knowing that I was selected by one of my teachers to participate in the Commencement Committe," said Senior Kristen Clark. Leadership Clubs participate in before and after school activities. National honor Society help with the student of the week awards and after school tutoring."Performing services helps me to feel useful," said senior Amie Himes. Leadership Clubs give students the opportunity to show their leadership skills while involving them in decisions on bettering the school. By Kimberly Sigg

Academic

Students use what they learn in school

The ScienceClub provided students the oppurtunity to learn and experience new things while still having fun. The Science club traveled to Purdeue for their annual Science Olympiad and while there they watched other students solve problems and experiment with new ideas. The science olympiads moved on to state after wonderful success at Purdue. "I had a great time participating in science olympiad. My task was to build a bridge that would hold up under exteme weight. It was difficult to build but was terrible watching it break,"said sophomore Stephanie Van Y. The Brain Game team was also very successful. They conquered many teams and moved on to place third in the state. It was a wonderful year for the team members." We had a great time winning. I'm glad I was part of such an excellent group of people," said senior Ed Ward. Together Brain Game, Science Club and other academic clubs gave students the chance to apply what they knew to the test. By Christina Van Y

Language

Culture brings students together

Foreign language clubs provided much enjoyment while the students gained vast knowledge about various cultures. Junior Lydia Serrano said, "Spanish club is a fun way to get together with other students and participate in activities centered around the Spanish language."

Foreign exchange students also had the lifetime experience of being educated in a foreign country. Their year at Warren Central has provided themwith a great deal of opportunities and experiences. The memories will be lifetime treasures to carry back with them to their native lands. Senior Rafael Ceres said, "I've really enjoyed my year here in the United States and Warren Central."

The clubs learned about foreign countries in fun ways like trying native foods and celebrating native holidays like Mardi Gras and Cinco de Mayo. In ths way, the students became more aware of the world around them while they had fun. Studying a foreign language helped all students to become more accepting of cultural differences, while they enjoyed the experiences offered by various cultures. "Anyone who studies a foreign language should expand their knowledge of the language, whether it be through clubs or spending time with others," said sophomore Teresa Hromada. Senior Jennifer Vaughn said, "German club was really fun this year. We learned a lot about culture, while having fun. Foreign language clubs helped open a door to the future for many students. All foreign language students opened their minds to a diversity of people and ended up with a greater knowledge of people. By Andrea Peck

Careers

Students plan for the future

Career clubs offered hands-on training to students that were planning ahead for their future. Senior Charles Hoagland said, "I enjoyed working on vehicles and my training through VICA auto body will help me to sustain a secure job in the automotive field."

Junior Don McVay, member of the VICA Electronics club, said, "I learned a lot and had a lot of fun with the hands-on training."

Some students enjoyed the variety of atmospheres that it gave them from the every day classroom atmossphere. Somophomore Ben Lambroa said, "It allows students to become more involved instead of just sitting at a desk." By Jennifer Stayton

Business

Business Clubs provide "real life" skills

When people think of homework they think of sitting down witha book; however, there were some students with homework that was related more closely to real life. Students involved in business clubs had jobs which served as their homework. "Since I work in an office, I won't feel as uncomfortable in the work field as some of the other graduating seniors," sadi senior Shannon McCrossan, who is involved in the Business Professionals of America program. Senior Jon Garvey of D.E.C.A. added, "The program is preparing me for my business major in college. It helped me learn how to compete with other business professionals." Farewell

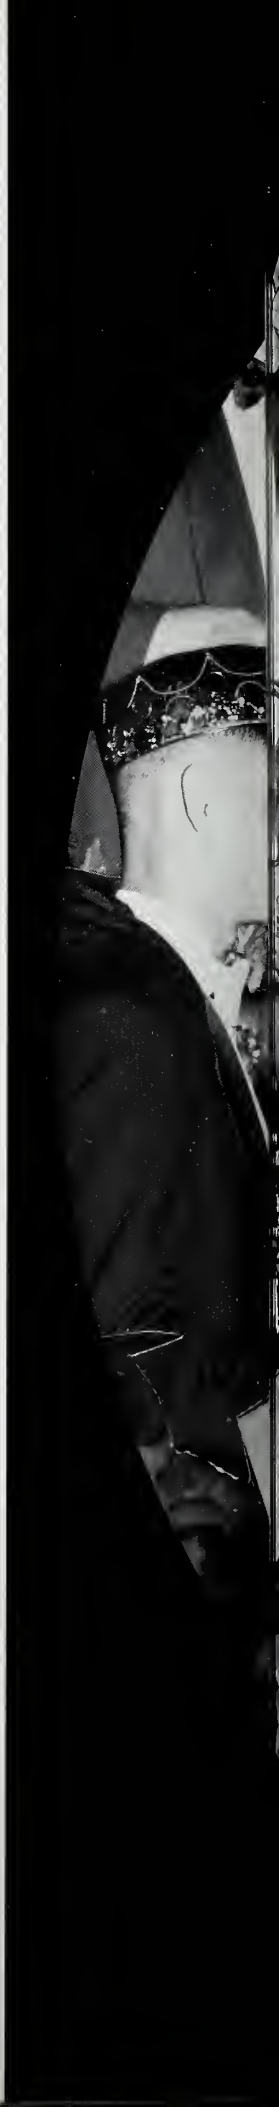
Walking into the dusty, torn-up building as a senior last August was certainly a good feeling. There was no more persecution for being an underclassmen--we had made it and as seniors we would be making the most of our last year. With the Homecoming game won and Spring Break tans faded, with the black and gold gowns picked up and the infamous photo taken, with the senior dinner over and the prom a distant memory, with graduation just a few days away, we begin to say our goodbyes. Goodbye to construction and Harry, school lunches and the tardy bell, the hike through the career center, homework, and the thirteen years of our completed education. High school will soon be gone and left behind but as we look ahead to our futures, we pause a moment to take pride in our past and remember the good times and memories and good friends and good fun.



SENIORS

Letting Go

Tears of happiness and sadness overflowed as the year came to a close for the senior class of '94. Many memories were shared among the 548 seniors that would soon be graduating. However; before the last bell rang and the last lunch was served, a week was reserved for the seniors to come together as a class and share some final memories before departing.

Senior Week was an emotional trip for the many seniors realizing that this would be the last time together. "I cried my eyes out during the senior dinner. I watched the senior video and it just made me realize how much fun I've had with my friends and how much I will I miss them," said Stephanie Sage.

Having fun was a great part of Senior Week. The dress-up days were part of the excitement of the week. "I loved Toga Day! Greek as it may be, it wasn't geek to me," said senior Natalie Gatlin.

The week came to an end. The dress-up days became a thing of the past, the dinner was eaten, the Senior Most Likely's were awarded, and the senior photo was finally taken. Patrice Petty concluded, "Senior Week gave me the opportunity to participate with my fellow classmates for one last time. What can I say--it was great!" By Kristen Clark

Unforgettable

Arriving in long black and white stretch limos or the borrowed Mercedes from good 'ole Dad at the Indiana Ballroom on April 29th, students dressed to impress for the much anticipated dance event of the year - the Junior and Senior Prom. "Everybody looked so nice! I like to see what everyone wears, it's all part of the fun of Prom!," said senior Radmila Popovic.

The evening began with a catered dinner. "We decided to eat at Prom because it came with the ticket price and I wanted to eat with all my friends. The food was excellent, especially the desert table," said senior Meredith Donges.

Ater dinner, couples slowly drifted towards the dance floor. "I really don't dance , but I saw everyone else have such a good time. I thought I join in on the fun. I had a great time," said senior Marie Powers.

The height of the evening came to a close with the crowning of the King and Queen. Seniors Andy Cornett and Monique Crain won the highly-touted crowns and danced to the theme song "Unforgettable" as part of the celebration. Student Council Sponsor Mrs. Wolff concluded, "I thought prom went really well. I wouldn't change a thing. This was the best looking group of kids that I've seen in a while!" Over 700 students attended Prom, making memories "Unforgettable". By Kristen Clark

Celebration

Shaving cream lined the streets, eggs were splattered on the windows, and water dripped from everyone's hair. It was the last day of school. The last time they would walk down the halls, go to their lockers, say hello to the friend headed in the other direction--but most importantly, it was the beginning to a whole new life. However, before they put their foot on the gas and drove out of the parking lot for the last time the seniors took a few minutes to celebrate their accomplishments.

"We deserved that moment. We had been waiting for it patiently for three years and it had finally arrived," said Billy Moore. "I don't think I will every forget that mouthful of shaving cream you gave me--you know who you are!" said Natalie Cowen.When the time came and the last senior car had left the parking lot, and only the remnants of shaving cream was left lying on the ground, everyone knew the seniors were finally gone. By Christina Van Y

The Grand Finale

The day had finally come and the seniors walked onto the floor at Market Square Arena. It was May 25, 1994, at seven thirty in the evening and the seniors had come from every direction to gather and say their last farewells to their fellow seniors and to their teachers. It was a moment each one would cherish. As they steppped forward to receive their diplomas, feelings of anxiety and happiness rushed through their blood. "The second they handed me my diploma, I knew my hard work was worth it. I had a great sense of accomplishment rush through me," said Ed Ward.

The graduates had earned their stripes. They had suffered through constuction, new parking arrangements, no lockers and lost classes. "It was my senior year and I was lost. I couldn't believe I was a senior and I didn't even know my locker combination," said Christina Rouch. But now the frustration and fun were both in the past--no more, tardy passes, detentions, Butler, a mile hike to get to school, and simply no more high school. High school no longer existed for the 548 students of the graduating class of 1994. By Christina Van Y

"The year has been fun but I'm looking forward to college," said Jesse Shultz. Photo by Jenny Coffin

Remember When

From the first day of kindergarten students begin to await the moment that they will receive their high school diploma. Remember when it was hot and sunny and the park was calling, or when the snow was just right for sledding, yet--never fail--Mom always made you do your homework? Well, even as a senior the temptations to go outside and play are still alive, but the duties of growing up just cannot be set aside. Scholarships, term papers, and college applications are only half of the hassle seniors have to deal with when preparing for their life after high school. Some will go away to college, while others will immediately venture into the work place. With their newly acquired diplomas, seniors will look back and remember those nice days that they weren't allowed to go and play, and realize that their hard work has paid off. The many dreams and goals made as a child often change, but as a senior you have set your goals and it is time to get down to business but before you do, take a moment and Remember When....

Heather, you have gracefully blossomed into a rose of many colors. Like all other roses, you have had to weather through many storms. As a seedling, you have been blown down, but always seemed to find your way back up. Keep your dreams close to your heart. Be open to all, but only let in those who will nurture those dreams. Dearest Tiffany,

You don't have to prove yourself to me, your father, or anyone. If you have done your best that's all that matters.

What you have become is more important than what you will achieve in the future.

We love you,
Mom and Dad

Melly

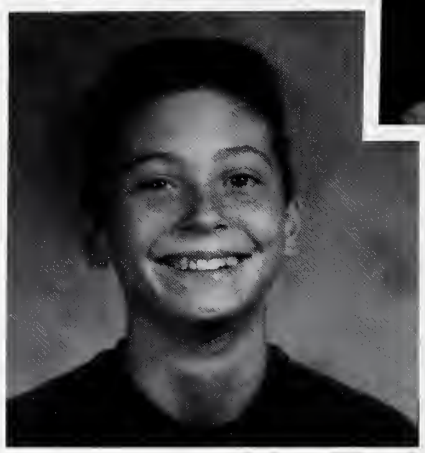
We love you,
Granny & Papaw

Thank you for letting us be part of your life. Thank you for keeping us on our toes and therefore young. Thank you for the great grades. Thank you for making us proud of you; but most of all THANK YOU FOR BEING YOU.

Jon,

we are very proud of you and love you very much.

Love,
Mom and Dad



Congratulations on your Graduation Day

Missy

How fast the years have gone by.
Looking back they just seem to fly.
Whatever happened to the little one we knew.
Into such a beautiful woman you grew.
We were always so proud to say "She's Mine."
Now daughter it's your time to Shine.
Into the background like shadows we'll fade.
You are the sunshine; we the shade.
You are the future we have hoped for.
Brilliant and radiant like a Morning Star.
Go dazzle the world with all of your light.
Sparkling like a Diamond, your fire is exceedingly bright.
May God Bless and Direct You Always,
Love Mom and Dad

Yes, Christina, this was the start of your dream. Being on the cover of Sports Illustrated, and you did it your way! Through cakes for 100's, organizing ARMY BAND concerts for school, writing stories, hatching chicken "Baby", and self lacing shoes. Broken bones, yes, you did it your way. 400 ballons, helium filled, pictures, swim meets, early mornings. I'm sorry, are you mad? You certainly did it your way. Now on your last leg of adolescence and begining your young aldult years. We know all about Yule Log, more swim meets, watching you work hard at Waycross, Baskin Robins, and yearbook, and papers you try to do work your best. I'm sorry, are you mad? No, we are not mad, for you did it your way. You are persistent, you will succeed, you will laugh at the world, and master your emotions. For you are one of the greatest miracles that came into our lives.

Christina

Love,
Mom AND Dad

Dear Shannon,

To the most sweet and gentle person we know. We are so proud of you and hope all your dreams come true, today and always.

Love,

Mom, Dad, & Kelly

We've watched you change & grow. We've seen you make the most of your talents and abilities as they come from within. Your dreams haven't come true without the help of hard-work, determination, & belief in yourself. Yet, they have made you strong. You have given us great joy and our hearts are filled with pride.

We love you!
Mom, Dad & Family

My pride, my joy, my friend, my daughter.

I love you so much Tosha and I'm so very proud of you!

Love,

Hey Sis:

You've co
a long way

Remember when you used to read me bedtime stories, practice pitching and catching with me, and even try to keep me out of trouble? You were always there for me-like a best friend. Well, you are my best friend. I am very proud of you Mom and Dad are, too! CONGRATULATIONS and good luck at Vincennes University! Don't forget I'm right behind you!

Us Out

Throughout the year students voiced their opinions and developed into the types of students that Warren Central could proudly boast of. "Coming to school on the first day was an eye-opener because the school was a mess due to the construction, but the students inside seemed with it and together." "The students pulled together, especially at games and extracurricular activities such as clubs, dances, and intramural sports." "I think that we, as students, did a great job representing our school ." "Our Brain Game team advanced to semi-state before being knocked out by Lawrence Central and several of the Speech and Debate members went to compete in regional and state." "Besides being on sports and academic teams, participating in clubs gave an opportunity to get involved and take a break from school work." Going out on weekends helped students relieve school stress. "On the weekends, I like to spend time with my friends and hang out." " I worked up until Spring Break to go to Cancun. My weekends were boring, but it paid off come Spring Break. "The anticipation of Spring Break, Prom and Graduation lingered on the many minds of students. "I never realized getting ready for Prom was so stressful, but I had an Unforgettable time." "Graduation was an emotional and exciting evening. I will always remember my name being called and Mr. Albano presenting the class of 1994." The events that shaped the students' lives binded the student body together as one, so look us up and Check Us Out!

Students Find Where They Fit In

When the 1993-94 school year began students involved themselves in everything from the annual musical to sports findin what they desired in many different places, areas and forms c activities. "Choir gave me the chance to make new friends an improve my abilities,"said junior Jennifer Stayton, a member o the Trebletones. Activities that had a high level of involvemer gave students the oppurtunity to meet new people and learn t work with their fellow students. "As a member of student counc I worked with many other students who were all working t improve school spirit," said junior Lydia Serrano, two yea member of Student Council. Sports also offered students th chance to work with others for a similar goal."Throughout th season everyone had different goals but the teams combine goal was to win as a team," said sophomore Bradley Griggs, Top Warrior on the boys track team. Even though every activit offered at warren is different they all give students the chance t work together and form friendships. Below:"It is important t watch the drum major carefully for changes in the tempo.", sai sophomore Lori Smalls.

Above: All kinds of creatures came to school one day to collect cigarettes. Photo by Michelle Olnick Right: "My stay in America has been the most memorable experience of my life. The friendships are unforgettable ", Rapheal Ceres.

The creation of this yearbook was in itself a Reality Check. Right off the bat, the staff found themselves in the old lecture hall (room 135) instead of the offices they had been used to (in the old staff room) and they had to find a way to fit all of their supplies, computer equipment, desks and filing cabinets into the small area available in the front of the room (because the rest of the room was filled with unremovable student desks). They took a look around, decorated the dreary walls, and adjusted quite nicely, after all. Being flexible was the name of the game this year, and this was just the beginning. Everywhere they looked, the school was being taken apart and put back together again—and very few things were anything like they remembered. It was this feeling of being suddenly dropped into a totally unfamiliar atmosphere which inspired the theme and title of this year's book—"Reality Check".

The Co-Editors-in-Chief, Kristen Clark and Christina Van Y, put their heads together and came up with the general design for the book, then met with the various section editors, who came up with the specific look for each area of the book. Kristen and Christina, following tradition, took on this task for the Opening, Student Life, and Closing sections—and, due to necessity, tackled the Sports section as well.

In second semester, when the newly trained sophomores joined the staff, they got a great amount of help from Kristy McPhillips, who took over the job of Sports Editor for Spring sports in the book, and from Andrea Peck, who showed that not only could she put together a great story, but that she was very good with a layout as well. The staff lost Alley Johnson, however, who did the original designs for the Club section of the yearbook, and made most of the decisions on the style of the Index section before she left. Kim Sigg took over from there, however, and supervised the completion of both the Clubs and Index sections. Rukiya Bey impressed the staff by managing to make the album section look almost easy—but she had a lot of help from new staffer Kamala Nichols. Everyone pitched in to make sure that Academics got covered, but it was up to section Editor Jenny Stayton to make sure that it all came together just right and on time.

Lydia Serrano had the interesting but very challenging job of covering all of the Performing Arts Department's many groups and activities, but the other staffers made sure that she got all the help she needed along the way—Especially Michelle Olnick, who coordinated or simply handled all of the photography for the book, with some help from Robert Russo (first semester), Derek Hoffman (from newspaper staff)—and a new photog who showed up at the last second—Heather Johnson. Other staff members were sometimes drafted to take some shots as well, and Michelle also did all sorts of odd jobs for the other staffers (such as getting quotes or selling yearbooks....). Which reminds me...the book couldn't even exist without Business Manager Jenny Coffin, who ran the yearbook sales, paid the bills, secured supplies, and designed and created all of the special messages in the Senior Ads section. She was very pleased to be assigned a helper second semester in the form of Brad Griggs—otherwise known as "the guy". In fact, the staff was pleased to welcome many new helpers second semester, such as Teresa Hromada, whose wonderful writing skills were very welcome; Dee Dee Davis, whose unique style of humor and manner kept us all entertained; and Media Trent, who quietly and calmly handled a fair share of stories and layouts—but we all suspected she wouldn't stay that quiet (or even that calm) for long.

Even not-so-innocent bystanders were sometimes drafted, such as Stephanie Van Y, who wasn't even in the class with us, but who gave up her lunch period all year and came to all after school meetings and turned out to be a very good staff member, even though we suspected at first that she was being coerced against her will by her sister (Co-Editor Christina Van Y). We were wrong, and we were very glad of it. Aimee Trumphey was another onlooker who came too close and got caught up in the whirl of things here, coming to after school meetings and signing up for full time duties for next year—but we decided to cheat a little and make her do a little work for us already, and her friend Jenny Stayton (who got her into this) gracefully offered to help her learn the ropes.

Overall, it was a chaotic but fun year, and despite the unusual circumstances, the staff snuck a little humor into things and turned this "Reality Check" into the book you now hold in your hands. We hope you enjoy it!
